

Alasdair Coles is a neurologist in Cambridge. He was closely involved in the development of alemtuzumab (“Lemtrada”) as a treatment of multiple sclerosis. Since then, he has tested two repurposed drugs as remyelinating therapies in multiple sclerosis and of immunotherapy in autoimmune psychosis.